

Message from our Patron

AIR CHIEF MARSHAL H MOOLGAVKAR,
PVSM, MVC.

Air Headquarters
New Delhi - 110 011

Safe and efficient flying requires integration of the man with ever increasing sophistication of aircraft. Man is the weak link in this man-machine system and its failure has often spelt disaster. Our Air Force can ill-afford to lose sophisticated aircraft, highly trained manpower and scarce foreign exchange. I am happy to learn that the aim of your Society is to strengthen the human element through research and indoctrination to achieve safe mission accomplishment. I wish you all success in this endeavour.

I call upon the members of your society, particularly the Squadron Medical Officers, to fully integrate themselves with the aircrew and to be ever vigilant to detect unsafe areas and factors which jeopardise flight safety. I would like every member of the society to pay special attention to maintenance of the physical fitness of our aircrew, at all times. I am sure with your professional knowledge, training and involvement, this task will be achieved.

(Sd.)

Air Chief Marshal

20th May 1976